

Domestic Violence Updated content 4.27.2011

Domestic violence awareness and prevention classes

Joan Fenton works with religious professionals and church groups within the Presbytery, leading domestic violence awareness and prevention classes at any location.

Workshops include:

- Training on the religious issues of domestic violence
- Providing tools and a resource kit for effective pastoral care to victims, offenders and their families
- Assisting in the development of prevention strategies and policies for congregations
- Ideas and study areas for adults who are concerned about our most vulnerable populations: children, youth and the elderly
- Classes for junior high, high school and college-age youth on understanding healthy and unhealthy dating relationships.

Joan Fenton serves on the national leadership team of Presbyterians Against Domestic Violence Network, or PADVN. Join this network and partner with us as we seek to end domestic violence. Both individual and church memberships are available. Go online to www.pcusa.org/phewa. Click on "learn more about PHEWA". There are eleven vital networks that promote justice and peace on this site. To schedule a workshop for your church or for more information about domestic violence awareness and resources, contact Joan at rjfenton5@gmail.com or at 602-451-7926